Why do we replicate?

Mittwoch, 14. Mai 2025 12:00 (30 Minuten)

We assessed all replications published in the top 100 psychology journals in the 10 years after the so-called replication crisis and investigated the nature of the replications, and the reasons provided for conducting the replications. We found that the replication rate is only half a percent across journals and that a predominantly novelty-oriented research culture even pervades the replication landscape.
